2009 ANNA LAURA COLE LECTURESHIP

“The Image of Nurses in Film and Fiction”

November 11, 2009

Speaker:

Marian Fleischmann, MA

The History of Nurses as portrayed in popular media is as varied as the people who wrote the books, made the films, and produced the television shows. Nursing culture reinforces the good aspects of the popular images of nurses and helps members feel supported as a professional and a person. It is a wonderful part of belonging – to have people to share a laugh with about the inaccuracies of treatments in the nighttime soaps, the crazy behavior of fictional nurses, and to enjoy together those characters when a writer, movie maker or a television producer gets it right.
